

Davy's Philosophy.
Old Davy Skinner, a fisherman on the Cape Cod coast, was noted for un-falling self-poise and economy of words. No one ever knew Old Davy to become in the least excited, nor did he ever waste a word.

One summer day he was rowing along in his boat, when a dory containing five or six young summer people was capsized near him. Naturally there were screams and wild confusion, in the midst of which Davy rowed over to the scene of the disaster and said placidly to the young people who were clinging to the boat, screaming for help:

"Hadden't you better git in?"

SWAMP-ROOT FOR KIDNEY AILMENTS

There is only one medicine that really stands out pre-eminent as a medicine for curable ailments of the kidneys, liver and bladder.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root stands the highest for the reason that it has proven to be just the remedy needed in thousands upon thousands of distressing cases. Swamp-Root, a physician's prescription for special diseases, makes friends quickly because its mild and immediate effect is soon realized in most cases. It is a gentle, healing vegetable compound.

Start treatment at once. Sold at all drug stores in bottles of two sizes, medium and large.

However, if you wish first to test this great preparation send ten cents to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle. When writing be sure and mention this paper.—Adv.

EEL TRADE IS DEMORALIZED

Catchers of Elongated Slippery Fish in Thames River Among Others Affected by the War.

Good Queen Bess' fondness for the Dutch eel is keeping one man in Britain in a state of forced idleness, observes the New York Sun.

In the early part of her reign a boat laden with eels sailed up the Thames and part of the cargo was sent to the virgin queen as a gift. Her majesty was so delighted with the, at that time novel dish, that she granted Skipper Visjersonen a charter which made the River Thames free to him and his descendants, absolved him of all river dues and gave his descendants the right to moor at a certain spot in the river forever.

But one condition of the charter was to the effect that the mooring place always must be occupied by some of their boats. If at any time the place was unused the privilege would cease. For 300 years the descendants of the fortunate skipper have piled their trade in the Thames, always retaining their original mooring place. But the war broke out, the eel trade fell off considerably and the submarine activity completely killed it off about two years ago.

Captain Villum, the last arrival in charge of an eel boat, has since that period been to all intents and purposes marooned. To maintain his rights it has been necessary to stay in the river, and until the war ends this condition will be fulfilled. He replies to questions as to the length of his exile that he expects to stay for two or three years yet.

WANTS PEACE AND WILL FIGHT FOR IT

PRESIDENT AVOWS CONTEMPT FOR PACIFISTS AND APPEALS TO LABOR FOR HELP.

Makes It Clear in Speech Before American Federation of Labor That War Must Be Fought to Successful Conclusion.

Buffalo, N. Y.—President Wilson, in a forceful address here on November 12 before the American Federation of Labor, appealed to the working men of the United States for co-operation in the conduct of the war, and made it clear that he opposes peace until the war against Germany has been won.

The president declared that his heart was with "the feeling of the pacifists," but that "my mind has a contempt for them."

"I want peace, but I know how to get it and they do not," he declared. Col. E. M. House, head of the American delegation to the allied war conference, the president said, had been sent to take part in a conference as to how the war was to be won, "and he knows, as I know, that that is the way to get peace if you want it for more than a few minutes."

War Statements Applauded.
The 450 delegates to the convention and the several thousand persons admitted to the hall to hear the president speak arose and applauded this declaration with a tremendous burst of cheers. Another demonstration of approval came when he said:

"We must stand together, night and day, until this job is finished."

The president, while devoting his address to problems for the people of the United States, laid emphasis upon the broader phases of the world conflict in a way that seemed to indicate that his speech was possibly intended as a message to the people of Germany, of Austria and of Russia, as well as of the United States. He declared his belief that were it not for the pan-Germans, the spirit of freedom would find "as fine welcome in the hearts of Germans as it can find in any other heart."

"Power," he said, "cannot be used with concentrated force against free peoples, if it is to be used by free people."

Speaking, probably of Austria, Mr. Wilson referred to the intimations of anxiety for peace that had come "from one of the central powers," and declared that it means "that the people in that central power know that if the war ends as it stands, they will, in effect, themselves be vassals of Germany, notwithstanding . . . that they do not wish in their pride and proper spirit of nationality to be absorbed and dominated."

Of Russia, he said that he was amazed that some groups in that country could suppose that "any reform plans in the interest of the people can live in the presence of a Germany powerful enough to undermine or overthrow them by intrigue or force."

Pacifists Are Fatuous.
"Fatuous as the dreamers of Russia," were those persons in this country, he declared emphatically, who suppose that "the free industry and enterprise of the world can continue if the pan-German plan is achieved and the German power fastened upon the world."

The president directly asserted that Germany had started the war and said he would leave confirmation of this statement to the verdict of history. He referred to Germany's growth to a "place in the sun," and asked why she was not satisfied when she gained that position. In answer he described the German government's methods of controlling the competition of its industries and asserted that "all the while there was lying behind its thought, in its dreams for the future, a political control which would enable it in the long run to dominate the labor and industry of the world."

Through R. R. a Force Threat.
Mr. Wilson cited in this connection the Berlin-to-Bagdad railway which, he said, "was constructed to run the threat of force down the flank of the industrial undertakings of half a dozen other countries, so that when German competition came in it would not be resisted too far . . . because there was always the possibility of getting German armies into the heart of that country quicker than any other armies could get there."

Summing it up, he said that Germany is determined that the political power of the world shall belong to her, and that never before had such ambitions been based upon so exact and precise and scientific a plan of domination.

The president voiced in terms of eulogy his approval of the conduct of Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, and the spirit of co-operation he had manifested in his relations with the administration.

"I like to lay my mind," he said, "alongside of a mind that knows how to pull in harness. The horses that kick over the traces will have to be put in a corral." The president's references to Mr. Gompers were loudly applauded.

Labor Must Be Protected.

"While we are fighting for freedom," Mr. Wilson asserted after these references, "we must see, among other things, that labor is free. . . . We must see to it that the instrumentalities by which the conditions of labor are improved are not blocked and checked. . . . Nobody has a right to stop the processes of labor until all the methods of conciliation and settlement have been exhausted."

The president took occasion also to denounce the mob spirit, which, he said, "is displaying itself here and there in this country." He declared that "if our men have not self-control, they are not capable of that great thing which we call democratic government."

Ecclesiastical Confectionery.

One Sunday a young man from the north of Scotland, while walking out with his sweetheart, noticed over a doorway the sign, "Dairy and Confectionery." Wishing to give the young lady a treat, the youth entered the shop and asked for chocolate creams.

"I dinna sell chocolate creams on the Sabbath," said the old lady behind the counter severely.

"But ye sell sweets to the woman that has just gone out," said the young fellow, who indeed had seen the transaction through the window.

"Ay, some ecclesiastical confectionery, but nae chocolate creams," said the lady, and went on to explain: "Ecclesiastical confectionery is peppermint drops, pain drops, and ginger lozengers, but nae chocolate creams."

ACID POISONING!

The most eminent physicians recognize that uric acid stored up in the system is the cause of gout and rheumatism, that this uric acid poison is present in the joints, muscles, or nerves. By experimenting and analysis at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., Dr. Pierce discovered a combination of native remedies that he called An-uric, which drives out the uric acid from the system, and in this way the pain, swelling and inflammation subside. If you are a sufferer from rheumatism, backache, pains here or there, you can obtain An-uric, double strength, at any drug store for 50 cents, and get relief from the pains and ills brought about by uric acid; or send Dr. Pierce 10c for trial pkg. An-uric which you will find many times more potent than lithia and eliminates uric acid almost as hot water melts sugar. A short trial will convince you. Send a sample of your water to Dr. Pierce and it will be tested free of charge.

Anuric is a regular insurance and lifesaver for all big meat eaters and those who deposit lime-salts in their joints.

Being a young man, he was telling a young woman all his troubles. It took him a long time, and the evening wore away. He explained how he had happened to lose his last position, and how he couldn't seem to get a foothold in another. She sighed, and he took it for a sigh of sympathy—maybe it was.

"I am confident that I could make a success," he said, "if I could only get a start."

She glanced at the clock. "I can help you," she declared. His eyes lighted with a new hope. "I can get your hat and coat," she continued, "and so he got his start."

She was twenty-six and he was fifty-six when they were married. He had been a farmer, but retired and lived in a little village near his big farm. About fifteen years after they married he bought another farm and moved onto it. This farm is across the road from his other farm.

Twenty years after they were married, they decided to move to a town of about 1,500, in order that their children might have better school advantages. They looked at many houses; but none suited her, because the bathroom was on the second floor. Finally, she found a place with a bedroom and bath on the first floor, so they bought it.

Her friends were curious to know why she had to have the bath on the ground floor. She explained that in a short time her husband would be helpless, on account of his age, and she wanted everything convenient for caring for him.

And then—just as they were getting ready to move into town—she died.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.
